

Original Print:

we're going to write the next blog post title "The Bank of Souls - Physical Realm Pillar in 5D". I'll just give you the context i want included: - love unconditionally as infinite resource to give anywhere to anything and everyone as a given, it gets revoked after, over the 3D of gaging if trustworthy. it's been able to hold disappointments and hurts as a natural process of life to be revered with love too, as hurts are just opportunity for love in a world that has learned not to trust their own abilities to keep going through life's fluidity - it's the 4D - Nurture: All Energy Consumption = Reflected Identity (I DO), so energies make our sense of self, so it's imperative awareness the energies we align with, align with our highest good. it makes our environment whether sound, people, places, colleagues, clients, lovers, family all of it, is the matrix's offering, but as conscious beings we get to pick and choose our environments, per example for 4Honest we'll have a thorough onboarding for not just staff but also single entries and members to make sure we retain our own heaven on earth vision which, makes sure the energies come in are stripped of the outside world's limitations and dogmas of how we interact with others and people will be heavily held accountable to preserve the nature of our mission, meaning people who complain, always worry, don't take accountability will defy the identity of our entirety. - there's no identity identification, cause we are all identities based on the environment, being the social chameleon is the norm, which allows us to interact with the wholeness of our being and be relatable to the all - labels and words are great to define and hellish when used to concepts and energies who don't fit preconceived parameters. There's not a box for the 5D living, they are the inside the box and the space around. it can deceive perceptions. - everything in this plane is a reflection of the self, even money can be conditional or unconditional based on the energy one holds. It's a great lover cause it doesn't judge you it allows you and opens doors for you, but even money can turn into self sabotage, if there's self sabotaging energies. now self sabotage only happens when we have a vision for ourselves, but we choose to follow what doesn't align, if it aligns with our choices no matter what those are, we should live and let live. if I want to kill myself through drugs, alcohol, sex, or pacify myself with socials or what not, it all counts if that's the life we want to have, but we must release any shame of projected selves and connotations of things. We choose who to align, but we understand all is fair and all had to exist for us to have the knowledge we have now about what things could look like. Others reflect what we could be if we were to follow their ways, nothing else. money sustainability is the tangible echo of our heart chakra. give love and watch the universe pay everything for you no matter how long you're giving yourself to it. There's always a way. - even things are at their most core the same. separation of subjects like biology, chemistry or else, are illusive ways to look at the same things under different lenses. all is one experiencing itself in different compositions. a pen has just as much consciousness as our mind if we let it speak to us. i'm not saying i have conversations with things, but it's the level of awareness we give things and how we treat them. Do you throw your clothes on the floor. just know you're throwing yourself on the floor, but if you give it love and say the floor is hugging it you give the universe a reason to see you respecting it, not seeing it as less than you just because it doesn't speak, walk or eat. everything that matters, matters and is divine. even shit is divine and sacred. all chips in the cycle of life on earth - plane of the 4 states: water/liquid, earth/solid, fire/heat, air/cold - everything here is created by higher planes, emotional or also called auras, whether in feeling or internal image, it highlights the energy in motion through our system - love is given based on needs, we bring 50 % of the bridge and whether it's a child a pet or an adul, or a wardrobe, we give love to ti, based on how much we choose to give as the pit is endless, and how to give it. No two energies require the same love and approach - be teh energy/abundance bank, feeding and interacting directly with poeple's souls to remind tehm they have one. This is how we awawken others, by being the bank of awakening in all ways possible