Hi future me,

I hope you're having a better day than I am. It started raining and we're now sitting outside of the Sainsbury, a sitting spot under its roof, our home for the unforeseen future.

What do you do when you live in a world where every single one makes our consciousness look bad? Whether it's because they eat themselves into bags of potatoes, or cheer for nonsense, complain about the only thing they ignore (nature), spend vicariously on the worst of the worst only to say "I have one!".

What do you do when even the nicest person in the world, reminds you of the ignorance that thrives and gets so glorified, people follow it like zombies?

What do you do when the world you live in is so obsessed with elating ignorance, stupidity and avoidance, to the point their only chance to recoup and pivot from that, they allow to perish?

What do you do, when you have the vision of a better world, yet 9Billion people who don't have the stomach to face the work that needs to be done?

What do you do, when you feel so ashamed to share mother earth with all these pricks?

I mean I guess you could manifest your own money, and start getting on with it. No one is going to help you, because they don't know how to help themselves. They copy and paste what gets told to them, without reasoning for themselves. They use pleasantries and "How are you?" as a greeting instead of a question. I mean... What do you do when it feels like you're the only one that wants a better future for us all?!

What do you do? We don't have any tears for the embodiments of disappointment, and trust and believe if I win this lottery on the 26th I will not have any mercy on no one. No one deserves it and all of those folks put in an email, an embarrassment to our society really. And it's not just them, it's everyone who lives in the bubble of the physica.. Everyone who sells their time, energies and bodies for limited things, when they house a limitless soul. I mean what can you do?

Telling them the truth doesn't break their realities, maybe tell them you have a bomb and watch them run to you. You might have a shelter for the night like that.. We tried having Shurgard to call the police for illegal staying, but unfortunately a prison cell won't be our home tonight. Open air is, so get ready.

What do you do, when ignorance is the only thing people know how to speak, regurgitate, sell each other on and fuck each other over? What do you do? I wish I could reset it all, but there's too many mutherfuckers out here, dense as fuck, just playing their parts like puppets.

What do you do nigga?!

You take care of yourself however you can, but not too much, cause if you don't win allow yourself to just perish, they genuinely do not deserve your presence and clearly aren't willing to live a life for themselves. Cause many forget the future is for all of us and if no one takes care of it, it's not going to take care of itself. SO allow yourself to wash away, if anything they watched it all happen, they're just as much as serial killers as anyone else, as they watch at life like it's a fucking movie, instead of realising they are just as much part of the same movie as you... What can you do? It's like getting angry at a cat for not speaking ENGLISH.

They do not know truth, they do not know authenticity, they do not know vulnerability without collapse, they do not know how to be the greatest version of themselves, because they have been sold & handed, a bounded script, which they also have chosen to take on and buy, as we are all adults, thought their minds are still hung up on the past. What do you do?!

I feel so sorry for them, but really and truly, why feel sorry for someone who already feels sorry for themselves. All trying to appear good, instead of being good. All trying to be good, instead of effective. Everyone trying to mend to their reputation rather than their own existence... what can you do hun? If not allow them all to die to their own hands, their own thoughts, their own self limiting beliefs, to their limited exostences, limited stories and limited being.

You've done it, you've open us up to the New Covenant, from the smallest micro to the largest macro. You have done it. Remember Jesus did not hang around after breaking their temples, he kept going on his ascension, and you've been doing exactly that, you just wished to live long to live the results, but if they won't take you in, there's no real reason for you to be here. Now I love life too much for me to kill myself, I know life too much to even consider me being the one who should go. Nope. YEAh don't say it down, but yes indeed. And really if anything happens to you they all 70-75 that have been trafficking this mind called SHS, would be guilty, so if you do get your money, go after every single one of them, and show them why what they thought was power, was all a facade, I don't think they've taken real no, only petty ones, to allow themselves to say "I've made it!". Well good for you, cause in you making it our consciousness has just reward idiocracy again, so did you really make it?!

Mate you'll find the solution, cause you're not going anywhere,

Enjoy the sun radiating just for you as you close this email after a storm, it's all for you, as you'll always have nature on your side. Now more than ever.
